SNBT Celebrates 138th Anniversary with Open House

What happened in 1874? Patents were granted for both the incandescent lamp and blue jeans, Robert Frost and Harry Houdini were born, and the United States consisted of only 37 states. On October 30th, Isaac Stephenson and a few other gentlemen, began the Stephenson Banking Company, which is now known as The Stephenson National Bank & Trust (SNBT).

SNBT will celebrate its 138th Anniversary with an Open House on Wednesday, October 31; refreshments will be served at all locations during bank hours.

“SNBT has been serving our communities for 138 years and the bank reflects our local heritage: hard working, fiscally responsible, and community oriented.” said John Reinke, SNBT president. “Throughout our long history SNBT has helped customers buy their first car; newlyweds purchase a home; entrepreneurs launch new business ideas; and innumerable people reach for their dreams.

“The fact that we’ve been around this long validates our deep-rooted dedication to independent banking and our strong commitment to our communities,” Reinke went on to say. “This is our opportunity to thank our customers. Without their business, SNBT would not be a community leader over the past 13 decades.”

The annual anniversary celebration gives SNBT employees the opportunity to acknowledge the customers who help make SNBT successful. The open house will be celebrated at all bank offices: 1820 Hall Avenue, Marinette; 1111 10th Street, Menominee; and 101 Bralick Way, Oconto.

The Stephenson National Bank & Trust is a 138-year old independent community bank with $750 million in Bank, Mortgage, and Trust & Investment assets under management. Offices are located in Marinette and Oconto, Wis. and Menominee, Mich. with a Trust & Investment Office in Marquette, Mich.
