SNBT Celebrates 144th Anniversary with Open House

Another year has gone by and The Stephenson National Bank & Trust (SNBT) is proud to be standing with their doors open wide. This October marks 144 years that SNBT has been servicing the needs of the community. SNBT may no longer hand write their ledgers, or use bank notes as currency, but the long-lasting bank continues to be involved in its local community.

“Each employee, from 1874 to present day, has become a part of the SNBT family and is the key to its success,” said Daniel Peterson, SNBT President & CEO. “As SNBT grows, its roots stay strong and we always remember how this legacy began, with a man named Isaac Stephenson.”

Peterson continued, “We reflect now on SNBT’s past and we see that the success of the bank has always stemmed from our community. We are privileged to be part of a community that stands behind one another through the good and the bad. Our most important mission is to help our customers and the community in achieving their goals—no matter what they may be. And so, this celebration is not about the 144th anniversary of SNBT, but it is a moment we take to acknowledge and show appreciation to all of our loyal customers, for their continuing support.”

On Thursday, October 25, SNBT will celebrate its 144th Anniversary with an Open House. Refreshments will be served at all locations during bank hours. The open house will be celebrated at the following bank offices: Crivitz Downtown, Marinette, Menominee, Oconto, Pembine, and Wausaukee.
